Striking a Balance

An outgrowth of the HCPC's Planning For Prosperity initiative, the on-going forum series started in 2004.

A rapid increase in demand for subdivided property in Hancock County has spurred the creation of this series. Organizers hope that the series will lead to:

- ✓ Increased Awareness of Subdivision Review Standards and Applicable State Regulations
- ✓ Greater Understanding of the Importance of Watershed-wide Planning
- ✓ Implementation of Planning Tools & Wise Development Practice
- ✓ Constructive Dialogue Among Municipal Officials, Conservation Groups and Those in the Development/Construction Industry
- ✓ Better Development Tracking at the Municipal and County Level

Housing Trends in Hancock County

- Between 2001 and 2006, the median sales price of a home increased by 63 percent while median household income increased by only 31.9 percent.
- County-wide, 70 percent of households could not afford the median-priced home.
- The median age of the head of a homeowner household is 54.7 years.
- The median age of a renter-headed household is 43 years.
- High housing prices means more people in the labor force must commute longer distances. For example, Census data indicate that six percent of the people who work in Bar Harbor commute from outside the county.
- As of 2007, there were 30 people reported as homeless in Hancock County. These data do not reflect people staying with relatives, friends or similar temporary arrangements.
- As of 2007, there were 210 households on the Ellsworth-MDI Housing Authority's housing voucher waiting list.
- There are an estimated 10,507 housing units (44 percent of the total) with lead-based paint.

Funding from the Maine State Planning Office, Bar Harbor Banking and Trust and Maine Community Foundation has helped make the Striking a Balance series possible. Other partners in this endeavor include the Down East Resource Conservation and Development Council, and Gouldsboro Planning Board.
